

7 TIPS FOR PROTECTING YOUR IDENTITY

- 1. Create strong passwords. Be original and use more than one word, swap out letters for numbers or other characters (such as 3 for E or ! or i) and vary capitalization.
- 2. Watch out for phishing scams. Fake emails can look real, always be cautious when something doesn't seem right. If you're not sure of the validity — email the requester directly and confirm before sending files or clicking on links.
- 3. Avoid over-sharing online. Social media isn't private, Facebook, Twitter and LinkedIn have all had massive data breaches in recent years — be mindful of what share and keep your privacy settings locked down.
- 4. Use IT best practices at home. Although everyone hates getting a forced update, make sure to stay current with your operating system and security patches and be sure to have an active anti-virus software running in the background.
- 5. Store and transfer data cautiously. Encrypt flash drives or files — think about what would happen if they were left on a plane or fell into the wrong hands.
- 6. Eliminate the paper trail. Shred any papers with account information, social security numbers and other identifying information, along with credit card offers, bank courtesy checks and documents with your signature.
- 7. Monitor your accounts. Keep a close eye on your accounts, look for suspicious activity and stay vigilant.
